In Black Hills of South Dakota

General View of "Summer White House," showing main road and stone bridge leading to lodge.

The "Summer White House" in the Custer State Park in the Black Hills of South Dakota, where President Coolidge will spend the summer months, adjoins the Black Hills National Forest and the Harney National Forest, which are not only rich in Indian lore and antiquities, but furnish some of the earliest examples of forest management in the United States.

The state park of 60,000 acres, where the summer White House is located, is adjacent to the Harney National Forest and a few miles south of the Black Hills National Forest. This park was the southeast corner of the Harney National Forest until the federal government exchanged it, as a solid block, for state lands scattered throughout the federal holdings. The two forests, set aside by President Cleveland in 1897, have a net area of 1,135,677 acres of government land, 50,000 acres of which are in the Theodore Roosevelt game preserve and 50,000 acres, in a federal game refuge adjoining the state park.

Within the present boundaries of the forest there are also 248,457 acres of patented lands, some of them in prosperous farms and ranches on the stream bottoms, some timberland more or less abused by hard cutting and fire, and some mining claims.

The name "Black Hills" was given to the region by the Sioux Indians. In their tongue it was "Paha Sapa," in allusion to the somber appearance of the forest-clad heights as seen from the plains. The Harney Forest was named for Gen. Harney, who was one of the early explorers of the region.

The forest growing, how grazing is regulated to keep the range green; and how land more valuable for farming than for timber-growing has been made available for homesteading. The first timber sales in a national forest were made in the Black Hills in 1899 and 1900, and the timber to be cut was so carefully selected, under scientific forestry, that the area can be cut again by 1935. Within and near the Black Hills and Harney National Forests are many points of scenic or recreational interest. The famous Hot Springs at the southern end of the Black Hills are visited by thousands, and the Wind Cave National Park and Jewel Cave National Monument also are well known. Harney Peak, the highest point in the United States east of the Rocky Mountains, Custer Peak, the "Needles," and Sylvan Lake are other points of interest, as well as the old mining town of Keystone, where is located the famous Holy Terror mine, from which came the richest gold ore ever found in the world. Tradition says this mine was named in honor of the discoverer's wife.

The Los Angeles and San Pedro Transportation Company having filed a complaint with the Railroad Commission against the Richards Trucking and Warehouse Company, the commission, after hearing, has ordered the defendant company to cease operation of trucks as a common carrier between Los Angeles and Wilmington or the Los Angeles harbor district via Harbor boulevard, and operation between Long Beach and San Diego or Los Angeles harbor district, other than Wilmington, either as to local service between such points or as an extension of its route between Los Angeles and Long Beach via Long Beach boulevard.

Pictures in Colors Now Sent by Wire Across Continent

It is now possible to transmit commercially pictures in three or more colors across the continent by telephone service.

The principle of such transmission is the same as that employed in sending black and white photographs by wire. The picture to be sent is usually provided in the form of a negative, generally of glass, and from this a positive is made on a celluloid film five by seven inches, which is placed in the cylindrical film-holding frame at the sending end. Simultaneously an unexposed film is placed on a cylinder at the receiving end and the two cylinders are started at the same moment by a signal from one end.

The time of transmission for a black and white photograph is about seven minutes. The time required for transmitting colored pictures depends upon the number of colors, as a separate transmission must be used for each color. Thus in a three-color print three separate plates are used. The same method is employed in making these plates as in printing. The print is photographed through colored screens which filter out the colors not to be recorded on the photographic plate.

It is expected that the transmission of colored prints by telephone will be especially useful in forwarding textile and style pictures. In this way a buyer just arriving in New York from Paris with colored photographs of the newest fashions will be able to distribute these photographs immediately to practically every section in the United States.
